PROMOTED

Dec 01, 2025, 7:49 PM

We are an existing estate planning company and are looking to create a new completely stand alone entity for online sales. Currently our model includes face to face sales and the new model has to be 100% automatic. We have an existing 3rd party website where we have to get our clients information entered in order to create a new account.

What I need is a brand new website that the clients can get educated and make the purchase. Once they make a purchase I need a data entry page for them to give us their information. Then I would like this information to automatically populate the existing website at the company who provides the 3rd party services: <https://clients.getestately.com/household>

This will generate a welcome e-mail to the client that will start their new account. I would like our website to collect this information and automatically populate this third party website so the client never sees it and only sees our website. Is this something you can help us with?

Hello Ryan,

Thank you for approaching.

At the moment, I'm unable to view your message as it's still being scanned. I'll review it as soon as it's available and get back to you promptly.

Kind regards,
Sohan

Thank you for your patience.

Yes, I can create a fully standalone website for your estate-planning business. The new site will include:

- An informative section about your services
- A system for purchasing your service online
- A secure form for clients to submit their information
- Automatic data transfer to your 3rd-party platform in the background

To safely send the data to your 3rd-party provider, I will need the API details or integration documentation from that platform.

I have a few quick questions to understand your needs better:

- What type of online service will you be selling on the website?
- How many pages are you expecting the website to have?

Looking forward to your response.

Sorry for my delay I have been traveling the last few days. We are looking at a using wordpress. We do not have the API and will have to utilize a web scraping tool of some kind to transfer the data. It will be a sales page that once they make the purchase we will have them fill out an information survey with their personal information. this information needs to match exactly to the estate page and complete their required information so it can generate an enrollment email

I understand your concerns. Do you have any reference website that has a similar look and functionality to what you want?

I do not currently but I can get that. Is the integration without and API going to be a problem

Me

I have to check that. Can you please join a quick Zoom meeting to discuss the project further?

We now have access to an API. It will be ready in Feb. Does that help things out Thank you for the update about the API. To make sure I fully understand your workflow, could you clarify the purpose of having the client information automatically create an account on the third-party platform?

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Hello Ryan,

How are you doing?

I wanted to check if you had a chance to look over my proposal. I would love to hear any thoughts or questions you might have, and adjust the plan as per your niche. Feel free to share openly.

this looks fantastic. I have a stripe account for credit card processing, I use go high level for the back end data base for client information survey, as soon as we have the API from Estatefy we will get started. Is there another outside service i am missing or that you would prefer to work with. We are very flexible at this stage of the game. If I need to change out any of these companies let me know now

That's great news, I'm excited to move forward.

Your current setup with Stripe and GoHighLevel is perfectly fine. Once the Estatefy API is ready, we can connect everything smoothly. You're not missing any additional services, and there's no need to switch platforms.

I'm sending the custom offer now. Please accept it so we can secure the timeline and get started.

Hello Ryan,

Good morning. I hope you and your family are safe and doing well.

Just wanted to check in as I haven't heard back from you yet, and I'm eagerly waiting for your valuable response.

If you have any questions or if there's anything unclear about the offer or the project, please don't hesitate to let me know. I'm here to support you.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Best regards.

I want to get a couple more things straightened out. I purchased the domain from godaddy. Do I need to get the domain there and get my email service from godaddy or would it be better to switch the whole thing to squarespace or some other provider. Which is your preference

Me

No worries, you can keep everything in GoDaddy

ryananderson190

That is what we will do then. Can we schedule a zoom call later this week to discuss what you need from us and exactly what we need you to do?

Me

Yes, a Zoom call would be great.

Thanks for placing the order
