Hi Sohan,

I'm hoping to rebrand my website and switch over to Wordpress. I built a website of my own based of research to showcase the style of design I'm looking to achieve as well as pages I'm hoping to have implemented in my project. Ideally, I would like someone who can understand my vision for this site and understands how to make the visible on Google via SEO. I would love to discuss things a little further with you and see if this good me a good fit 🍌

Hey Sohan,

Thanks for your message! That sounds great. This include all the pages previously included in my original website, including locations and services?

I'm in the process of speaking to a few other freelancers so I'll get back to you with an answer shortly.

Do you have examples of service based business websites you have created in the past?

Me

Yes, the project will include all the pages from your original website, including locations and services, ensuring everything is seamlessly integrated into the new design.

I understand you're speaking to other freelancers, but I'm confident my approach will offer both quality and efficiency. I've worked with several service-based businesses, and I'd be happy to share examples that align with your vision once we move forward:

Hey Sohan,

My other developper is making things very difficult for the website. Can we look into having the project started with you? What is the estimated time of completion? How familiar are you with customazibility using CSS and other forms of code?

Me

Mar 17, 5:48 AM

Thank you for reaching out again. I am very familiar with CSS and customization.

However, I don't usually work on existing projects built by other developers, because every developer structures their work differently. Without knowing the existing base, it can be risky and inefficient. I prefer to work from scratch, building a clean and fully customizable website tailored to your needs.

Please let me know if you're happy to move forward with starting fresh, and we can discuss the timeline and next steps.

Hey Sohan,

This sounds amazing to me! I would love to proceed forward with this. A few things I would like to add to the project. I'll make a more comprehensive guide for the structure of the website so you can perfectly execute things as I envision. I'll send over the document within the next day or two and lay things out a little better for you. I am also open to using plugins as necessary. I used Rocket.net for hosting with my last dev. If you are fine with this I can send over the proper access. How do you usually require access? Should I add you as a new user?

Mar 18, 2:29 AM

Me

I can definitely work with Rocket hosting. It's usually easier to work with full credentials, but adding me as a collaborator works as well.

Yes, please share the guide documents when you have them. I will be waiting.

Mar 18, 2:55 AM

Chris H

Hey I'll need an email to add you to the site users

Mar 18, 4:47 AM

Me

Okay, sounds good! I will share an email for the site access once you accept the custom offer. After that, you can add me as a user and we'll be all set to get started.

Apologies for the confusion. I was trying to create a Rocket account to send you the mail to collaborate and work through my own Rocket account. After several attempts, I realized that Rocket doesn't allow a free freelancer plan; they require a paid plan to create an account, so unfortunately, a free account isn't available.

I'm sorry for the inconvenience, but it seems the best approach is to work using your hosting credentials. Don't worry, once we finish the website, you can always change the password for your peace of mind.

Mar 18, 5:19 AM

Chris H

perfect no problem I have the paid hosting service right now so I can give you access to the account to build the website. What is your email?

Mar 18, 5:53 AM

We can try that and see if that works.
